

Curriculum Vitae

Dr. Emilio Pizzichini is Professor of Respiratory Medicine and Head of the Asthma and Airway Inflammation Centre (NUPAIVA) at the Universidade Federal de Santa Catarina in Florianópolis, Brazil. His research focuses on the epidemiology, pathophysiology, and treatment of asthma, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and cough, including methods of assessing airway inflammation using induced sputum and the development of surveys on quality of life. He has published research articles in peer-reviewed medical journals, including New England Journal of Medicine, American Journal of Respiratory and Critical Care Medicine and Lancet Respiratory Medicine, and contributed with more than 20 book chapters. Dr. Pizzichini serves as an ad-hoc consultant for several respiratory journals and associate editors to others. From 2005 till February 2017 he has acted as a member of the Scientific Committee of GINA (the Global Initiative for Asthma) and currently is the Leader for South America of the Respiratory Effectiveness Group (REG). He is past president of the Asthma Committee of the Brazilian Society of Respirology [SBPT and of the respiratory association of respiratory diseases in Santa Catarina (ACAPTI)]. It was a member of CNPq (Brazilian Research Council) and was the Scientific Director of the SBPT during 2012-14. Dr. Pizzichini received his Medical Degree from the Universidade Federal do Paraná Medical School in Curitiba, Brazil, and his PhD degree in Respirology from the Federal University of São Paulo, Brazil. He completed his internship and residency in internal medicine at the Hospital de Clínicas at the Universidade Federal do Paraná Medical School and a fellowship in Critical Care Medicine at Hospital de Caridade in Florianópolis. Dr. Pizzichini was a Visiting Professor at McMaster University in Hamilton, Canada, and worked during more than 5 years with Professors Frederick E. Hargreave, Jerry Dolovich, Paul O'Byrne and Malcolm Sears. Currently he is a Global Medical Expert working in GSK.]